

ALLIED MECHANIZED COLUMNS STREAM THROUGH ROME AT BREAKNECK SPEED IN PURSUIT OF DISORGANIZED GERMANS

Berlin Military Spokesman Says "Great Battle in Italy is Continuing with Undiminished Fury After Allied Occupation of Rome"—Wild Excitement Replaces Shock and Surprise for Those Liberated in Rome.

By International News Service

Allied mechanized columns forged the Tiber River and streamed through the streets of liberated Rome at breakneck pace today in pursuit of disorganized German forces seeking to make a new stand somewhere far north of the Eternal City.

A Berlin military spokesman said that the "great battle in Italy is continuing with undiminished fury after the Allied occupation of Rome." Two centers of present fighting, Berlin said, are the sectors northeast of Rome and the southern slopes of the Sabine hills. "Fifth Army attempts to overtake the withdrawing German troops were frustrated," the enemy broadcast alleged.

ROME, June 5.—(INS)—The shock and surprise of sudden and miraculous deliverance left Rome today and gave way to wild excitement and a lavish welcome to American and British troops.

With cessation of the last vestiges of enemy resistance enabling Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark to announce complete liberation of Rome after almost 22 months of oppression, the smilt streets became crowded with holiday-makers and Rome gave generously of its traditional hospitality.

And all the Romans seemed overjoyed when an American private, allegedly from Brooklyn, mounted Benito Mussolini's famous balcony of the Palazzo Venezia and delivered himself of an oration which said just what he and all the other G. I. boys think of Fascism.

The celebrations were of an orderly nature although an occasional act against some staunch Fascist or remaining Nazi was reported.

At 9 o'clock last night, this correspondent was at hastily-established press headquarters in the outskirts of Rome. At that hour and for many hours thereafter, there was savage rear-guard fighting as the Germans strove hard to screen and protect their withdrawal.

The skies of Rome were lit with pyrotechnic flashes of big guns. Machine guns rattled and snipers' bullets whistled.

The steady rear-guard actions fought by the Germans continued without a lull, but it was evident when darkness came last night that the Germans were pulling out.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

The Wallace Controversy

Washington, June 3. TO be frank about it, the big reason for the exceedingly deep feeling concerning the renomination of Vice-President Wallace as Mr. Roosevelt's fourth-term running mate is that, in the event of the election of the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket, Mr. Wallace's chances of becoming President before the term is over are considerably greater than they were in 1940.

THIS IS too obvious to need argument. For one thing, should Mr. Roosevelt be re-elected, he would be 63 years old soon after his inauguration, instead of 59 as in 1940. For another, while there is nothing in the least serious the matter with him, he has been forced to slow down, see fewer people and do less work. Under order of his physicians he is taking better care of himself. And the whole White House staff is trying to spare him all unnecessary labor. Naturally, this has given rise to speculation concerning the situation should he be re-elected. It has been suggested, for example, that after the war against Germany has been won Mr. Roosevelt might resign, devoting himself to the making of the peace and accepting direction of the post-war League of Nations. Or he might find himself physically unable to cope with the terribly difficult post-war domestic problems and be compelled to relinquish the Presidency to save his health. Either of these suggestions fits in with the claim of his friends that he really doesn't want to be President again and is running only because of his belief that his continuance is essential to the winning of the war.

OF COURSE, if elected, Mr. Roosevelt may regain his full strength and serve another term (he then would be only 67) with unimpaired virility. But, it must be admitted that, for one reason or another, there is an enhanced prospect over Six of these quaint houses were open to the public on this day, and many of the old fixtures in the tiny rooms were admired. Rare butterfly shelves were noted in some of the little stores; and of particular interest was the house occupied at one time by Stephen Girard.

FIRE DAMAGES FLOOR OF EDDINGTON BRIDGE

Firemen Delayed in Efforts Because of High Voltage In Electric Lines

Firemen were first called to the scene shortly after ten o'clock but due to a delay by the P. R. R. in shutting off the high voltage lines, which operate the electric trolleys, were unable to fight the flames.

It was nearly two hours before the power was shut off upon the arrival of firemen from Bristol. It was but a short time before the flames were extinguished.

Forces Entering Rome Get Mixed Greetings

Rome—The eternal city of Rome, whose core was totally spared the horrors of war, had a mixed greeting for liberating forces entering at dusk on Sunday.

Romans climbed over Allied tanks and jeeps and made progress so slow it took us from 7 p. m. to 11 p. m. to reach the city's center where the populace came out in their nightclothing to cheer the soldiers wildly, flooding the moving columns with light and forgetting that the Nazis were only across the river Tiber.

One man had been awake for 24 hours past, praying that the Eternal City would be spared as a battlefield. He was Pope Pius XII. Last night he blessed the liberators and spent hours in his intimate chapel, offering thanks to God and exhorting the war's early end.

CLOTHING PROBLEM ACUTE

Reports portraying the starvation and malnutrition prevalent in the conquered countries of Europe appear quite frequently, but it is less often that one hears of the suffering caused in those lands by the scarcity of clothing.

The National Planning Association recently made public a report, prepared under supervision of Clarence E. Pickett, executive secretary of the American Friends Service Committee, in which it was estimated that clothing sufficient to provide 100,000,000 persons with complete outfits will be required immediately after the war.
There also is immediate need for 200,000 pairs of shoes and materials to repair 100,000, 000 additional pairs.

Experts who prepared the report emphasized that clothing standards in Europe have declined much more drastically than have dietary levels. In 1943, the report stated, cold probably caused as much suffering and as many deaths as did hunger.

The report contends that the bulk of the clothing required will have to be supplied, if at all, by the United States. Yet, it adds, no serious steps have been taken to provide for the need.

As Bernard Baruch recently said, no country, after the war, will be able to improve the well-being of its people without help from the United States, and peace will be almost meaningless without betterment of daily existence.
If this is an overstatement, it illustrates a point. If the peace should be viewed as meaningless because of loss of hope among the peoples of the world, new wars will be in the making. The United States will have done only part of its task if it fails to aid as generously as possible the stricken peoples of the liberated nations.

ALL-DRAFT DIVISIONS

The draftees have come into their own. For the first time in this war, two all-Selective Service divisions, the 88th and 89th, have gone into combat as units.

Composed of inductees from every state in the Union, they gave a splendid account of themselves in the new offensive in Italy, chasing the Nazis 30 miles in two weeks. They advanced side by side, the 88th cleaning up the Tyrrhenian coast and the Pontine marshes, the 88th breaking the back of the Hitler line to the east.

These divisions were fresh troops but not untrained troops.
Every unit had had its taste of patrol duty. Every soldier had spent months in rigorous training on the varied Italian terrain. They proved that the spirit of draftees is no whit less than that of volunteers. After all, they are all fighting in the same cause, sacrificing the same civilian privileges and securities, and exposing themselves to the same hazards.

Slow to start, the anti-Axis nations gain momentum with each passing week. And it is the last battle which counts.

Ohio man charged with stealing coupons good for 583,000 gallons of gasoline may decide, on second thought, to have the carburetor adjusted.

A Model is Murdered ~ BABS LEE

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

Argus noted the single bed and small bureau in the alcove. The apartment was devoid of bric-a-brac or ornaments of any sort, including pictures and ashtrays. On the opposite side was a closet-like affair with cupboards, a small icebox and some shelves. A two-burner electric stove stood on a tin table that sloped.

"Depressing dump, isn't it?"
Argus asked.

"See what you think of this,"
Grange said. He led him to a spot directly opposite the table. There was a hole in the wall about the size of a bullet. "Looks like this is where Redbeard carried on his experiments, all right."

"Find anything else?"

"Yep." The inspector opened a closet door. An overcoat hung there. "There's no mark in it," Grange said. "It may take us a long time to trace it, but it's identical with the description of the one Redbeard wore."

Argus felt the material, sniffed it, and then turned one of the pockets inside out, carefully, so as not to spill any of the dust that might be in the bottom.

"I'd like to know what your men find from examining this dust," Argus said. "Particularly if they find any tobacco." He replaced the coat and walked into the bedroom.

He pulled back a corner of the bed coverings. The sheets were clean and unwrinkled. The bureau drawers were next. They were bare.
A sad looking plant that had not been recently watered stood on a dusty dish on the window-sill. An express roared down the El on a level with the window.

"Where's the bathroom?" Argus shouted above the din.

"It's down the hall," Grange roared back. "There's one bath to each floor."

Argus examined the surface of the refectory table, with its red velvet cover. There was a mark on the velvet as though something heavy had been laid on it. There were two floor plates behind the table. Next to them was the telephone bell box.
There were tiny scratch marks on it as though some one had tried to take it apart with a sharp instrument and it had slipped, marring the paint. On the carpet was a tiny sliver of glass. Argus picked it up.
"Better take a dust combing around this table," he said.

"Okay. Find something?"

Argus put the glass into Grange's hand. Then he went into the kitchenette. There was dust on the shelves, in the glasses, and dishes.
There was a red garbage pail next to the tin table. He lifted the lid.
The inside pail was missing.

"What's your theory, Inspector?"
the detective asked.

"Well," said Grange, pulling at his chin, "we know that Sturgis was in love with Syria and jealous of her. And he was clever about inventing things. Sturgis walked with a limp—so did Redbeard.
Sturgis, by his own admission, was in the vicinity of 25th Street and Fourth Avenue the day Redbeard bought his disguise."

"If Sturgis were Redbeard," Argus suggested, "the kid that picked up the beard at Western Union might be able to identify him. But there's another problem:
Assuming that Sturgis was our man, who shot him and who shot Flagg?"

"Yes," Grange sighed. "I've thought of that, too. But Sturgis seemed like such a logical Redbeard, everything about him fits so well with what we already know, that I figured there must be some simple explanation if we could just think of it."

"Perhaps," Argus said, uncon-vinced.

Grange's face brightened. "Or maybe Sturgis knew who Redbeard was and followed him up here, threatened him, and was shot."

"That sounds more likely," Argus nodded. "I'd like to have a talk with the super. And, if I may make a suggestion, don't let any one smoke in this room until you've taken up the dust from around the table."

The superintendent turned out to be a genial Swede with a clean apartment in the basement. He seemed more than anxious to answer questions.

"This man Stoffsky came to you on Thursday afternoon to rent 2F," Argus began.

"Yes. He came 'bout six o'clock to look over the place," he said in a sing-song voice. "Then he pay me
the rent in advance and say he move in Friday."

"And did he?"

"Yes."

"Can you describe him?"

"Sure. He about as tall as you and he have a reddish beard and glasses. He wear a loose overcoat and a dark felt hat and he walk with a limp. When he talk he talk like a refugee. He speak with accent."

"Notice anything about his hands? Any rings—or a watch?"

"He wearing gloves every time I see him. I don't know about any watch."

"When he paid the rent did he sign anything?"

"No."

"How about that phone upstairs?"
Did Stoffsky put that in?"

"The phone already in, but he had a man come in and turn it on."
"When?"

"When he move in he tell me to expect phone man and he give me ten dollars to pay him, and tell me to sign for it. The man come Saturday."

"Was Stoffsky here?"

"No. He went out. I let the man in and stay while he connect it."

Argus sat forward in his chair.
"When you were in the apartment did you see anything unusual?"

The Swede scratched his blond head. "Come to think of it, by yim-miny, there was a machine standing on the table. The phone man say it was an air-cooler."

The Burgess and council assembled at the council chamber last Monday morning at 10 o'clock. The newly elected members, A. K.
Joyce, Joseph Sherman, George A.
Shoemaker, Clarence N. Peirce,
Jacob M. Winder and Albert Hoe-ding, were sworn in by the Burgess
J. Wesley Wright. William Tabram was renominated president; James Wright, treasurer; Jesse O. Thomas, clerk; B. F. Gilkeson, borough attorney; Charles Saxon, pound keeper; and B. C. Foster, appointed to take charge of the town clock.

There being no opposing candidates for these offices the clerk was directed to cast the ballot for the persons named, and the Burgess declared them unanimously elected.
For fire warden, Henry Rae, and Joseph S. Peirce were nominated, a ballot being taken, Henry Rae received seven votes and Joseph S.
Peirce, four. Mr. Rue was declared elected. On motion the salary of the borough treasurer was fixed at $25;
clerk, $75; borough attorney, $25;
and compensation for person taking charge of the town clock at $20.

On motion A. Weir Gilkeson was chosen as borough surveyor.

ALLIED MECHANIZED COLUMNS STREAM THROUGH ROME AT BREAKNECK SPEED IN PURSUIT OF DISORGANIZED GERMANS

Berlin Military Spokesman Says "Great Battle in Italy is Continuing with Undiminished Fury After Allied Occupation of Rome"—Wild Excitement Replaces Shock and Surprise for Those Liberated in Rome.

By International News Service

Allied mechanized columns forged the Tiber River and streamed through the streets of liberated Rome at breakneck pace today in pursuit of disorganized German forces seeking to make a new stand somewhere far north of the Eternal City.

A Berlin military spokesman said that the "great battle in Italy is continuing with undiminished fury after the Allied occupation of Rome." Two center of present fighting, Berlin said, are the sectors northeast of Rome and the southern slopes of the Sabine hills. "Fifth Army attempts to overtake the withdrawing German troops were frustrated," the enemy broadcast alleged.

ROME, June 5.—(INS)—The shock and surprise of sudden and miraculous deliverance left Rome today and gave way to wild excitement and a lavish welcome to American and British troops.

With cessation of the last vestiges of enemy resistance enabling Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark to announce complete liberation of Rome after almost 22 months of oppression, the sunlit streets became crowded with holiday-makers and Rome gave generously of its traditional hospitality.

And all the Romans seemed overjoyed when an American private, allegedly from Brooklyn, mounted Benito Mussolini's famous balcony of the Palazzo Venezia and delivered himself of an oration which said just what he and all the other G. I. boys think of Fascism.

The celebrations were of an orderly nature although an occasional act against some staunch Fascist or remaining Nazi was reported.

At 9 o'clock last night, this correspondent was at hastily established press headquarters in the outskirts of Rome. At that hour and for many hours thereafter, there was savage rear-guard fighting as the Germans strove hard to screen and protect their withdrawal.

The skies of Rome were lit with pyrotechnic flashes of big guns. Machine guns rattled and snipers' bullets whistled.

The steady rear-guard actions fought by the Germans continued without a lull, but it was evident when darkness came last night that the Germans were pulling out.

THE WALLACE CONTROVERSY

Washington, June 3.

To be frank about it, the big reason for the exceedingly deep feeling concerning the re-nomination of Vice-President Wallace as Mr. Roosevelt's fourth-term running mate is that, in the event of the election of the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket,

Mr. Wallace's chances of becoming President before the term is over are considerably greater than they were in 1940.

THIS IS too obvious to need argument. For one thing, should Mr. Roosevelt be re-elected, he would be 63 years old soon after his inauguration, instead of 59 as in 1940.

For another, while there is nothing in the least serious the matter with him, he has been forced to slow down, see fewer people and do less work. Under order of his physicians he is taking better care of himself. And the whole White House staff is trying to spare him all unnecessary labor. Naturally, this has given rise to speculation concerning the situation should he be re-elected. It has been suggested, for example, that after the war against Germany has been won Mr. Roosevelt might resign, devoting himself to the making of the peace and accepting direction of the post-war League of Nations. Or he might find himself physically unable to cope with the terribly difficult post-war domestic problems and be compelled to relinquish the Presidency to save his health.

Either of these suggestions fits in with the claim of his friends that he really doesn't want to be President again and is running only because of his belief that his continuance is essential to the winning of the war.

OF COURSE, if elected, Mr. Roosevelt will regain his full strength and serve another term (he then would be only 67) with unimpaired virility. But, it must be admitted, for one reason or another, there is an enhanced prospect over

"The Future of Your Community Lies in Your Children," Says Speaker

J. MCCARTHY SPEAKS

NEW HOPE, June 5.—Sixty persons from New Hope, Solebury and Upper Merion Townships attended last week the fifth annual meeting of the New Hope Recreation Center, where James McCarthy, recognized youth authority, spoke on "The Future of Your Community Lies in Your Children," at the New Hope Art Gallery.

The following board of directors was elected: Charles Evans, president; John Polinske, vice president; Watson Janney, treasurer; Mrs. James McCombs, Miss Jere Hellyer, the Rev. Fr. Gallen, Scott Oblinger, the Rev. Ellsworth Jennings, of New Hope; Miss Naomi Huber, secretary; Mrs. Edward Riley, Mrs. Charles Child, Mrs. David Laine, Mrs. Peter Grey, Mrs. S. A. Jacobson from Solebury, Mrs. Norman Mortimer and Mrs. A. Harlan from Upper Merion.

Charles Evans presided. He traced the history of the recreation center and stated that for the past three summers and again this year the Bucks County Playhouse Corporation and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Chapin had donated the parking lot and the red frame building on the lot to be used as a community playground.

Miss June Peiffer, supervisor of the recreational program, stated that there were 182 registrants for the Winter program with an average attendance of 76.

McCarthy spoke of children being particularly restless during this period of war and for that reason require greater supervision.

R., who was wounded in the initial invasion of the Marshall Islands on February 1st, has been removed from Pearl Harbor to a U. S. Naval Hospital in Seattle, Wash.

Elfreth's Alley, Phila., Interests Club Members

Twenty-eight members of the Travel Club participated in the club's spring trip on Saturday, the group selecting as a site for its visit this year, Elfreth's Alley, in old Philadelphia.

Luncheon was served to the women at one o'clock at the Friends Service Center, Philadelphia, after which the Bristolians and other groups visited a number of homes on Elfreth's Alley, said to be the oldest street in the United States whose homes have continuously for such a long period of time been occupied.

Six of these quaint houses were open to the public on this day, and many of the odd fixtures in the tiny rooms were admired. Rare butterfly shelves were noted in some of the little stores; and of particular interest was the house occupied at one time by Stephen Girard.

Firemen Delayed in Efforts
Because of High Voltage
In Electric Lines

DELAYS SOME TRAINS

EDDINGTON, June 5.—Fire yesterday morning burned the flooring of the overhead traffic bridge above the P. R. R. at Station avenue. The flooring and bridge on the north side and above the eastbound tracks was considerably burned.

Firemen were first called to the scene shortly after ten o'clock but due to a delay by the P. R. R. in shutting off the high voltage lines which operate the electric trains, were unable to fight the flames.

It was nearly two hours before the power was shut off upon the arrival of firemen from Bristol. It was but a short time before the flames were extinguished.

Train traffic was delayed about an hour.

H. Lincoln Hughes stated that he telephoned the P. R. R. headquarters at Jersey City when the Cornwells firemen first arrived, but that

The Bucks County Council Boy Scouts of America held their annual camporee at Camp Oceanick-on, beginning at one p. m., Saturday. The camporee ended at eight, yesterday morning, so that the boys would have an opportunity to get back to their Sunday School and church services.

The camporee is a part of the year round program, with preliminary work taking place in the troops, beginning March 1st, and ending up to the big out-door event. The patrols on Saturday camped in three sections of the camp. Each patrol selected its own site, set up camp, cooked supper and breakfast, as well as take part in the evening campfire. Patrols were judged on their ability to carry out a good program throughout the entire period, as well as their knowledge of camping and camping skills.

Patrols were rated on their ability and were awarded streamers for patrol standing. Each scout taking part received a camporee medalion and the troops having patrols with high ratings received the white four point activity streamer.

JUDGMENT SOUGHT AGAINST BRISTOL ENGINEER FOR WPA

Gov't Accuses Joseph E. Newman of Collecting "False" Claims

TRAVELING EXPENSES

Said to Have Secured WPA
Pay for Private Chauffeur

(By International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—Joseph E. Newman, 249 Radcliffe street, Bristol, former project engineer for the Works Project Administration in Pittsburgh, was accused by the government in Federal district court here today of having collected $1,207.08 on "false" claims for automobile traveling expenses, and of having the WPA pay his private chauffeur wages amounting to $1,066.02 by listing the man as a WPA truck driver.

The accusations are made in a civil suit filed by U. S. Attorney Gerald A. Gleeson, acting for the government, seeking a judgment against Newman for a total of $6,546.20, representing double the amount of the "improper" payments which total $2,273.10, plus a penalty of $2,000 for having made the false claims.

Newman, according to Gleeson's complaint, was reimbursed for the traveling expenses between August 1935 and August 1938 on his representation that he used his own automobile for official business. But Gleeson charges, Newman didn't own the automobile, and the traveling for which he was paid was not in the performance of his official duties. Gleeson's complaint does not say who owned the automobile.

The other alleged false claim relates to a man named William H. Continued on Page Four

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

LA JUNTA ARMY AIR FIELD, Colo., June 5.—William J. Harkins, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Harkins, 153 So. Pine street, Hazleton, Pa., recently was awarded the silver wings of a pilot at this advanced two-engine pilot school of the AAF Training Command.

He was graduated as a 2nd Lieutenant after completing the final phase of flight training as an Aviation Cadet in the AT-24 airplane, a slightly modified version of the famed Mitchell B-25 medium bomber.

High School: Bristol, Pa.

During an intensive 10-week course of study at La Junta, student pilots learn the flying characteristics of medium bombers, practice formation flying, obtain proficiency in instrument or "blind" flying, and continue their study of navigation, meteorology, and recognition of friendly and enemy air and surface craft.

On graduation, the pilots go immediately into specialized operational training for combat or to four-engine transition training.

Forces Entering Rome Get Mixed Greetings

Rome.—The eternal city of Rome, whose core was totally spared the horrors of war, had a mixed greeting for liberating forces entering at dusk on Sunday.

Romans climbed over Allied tanks and jeeps and made progress so slow it took us from 7 p. m. to 11 p. m. to reach the city's center where the populace came out in their nightclothing to cheer the soldiers wildly, flooding the moving columns with light and forgetting that the Nazis were only across the river Tiber.

One man had been awake for 24 hours past, praying that the Eternal City would be spared as a battlefield. He was Pope Pius XII. Last night he blessed the liberators and spent hours in his intimate chapel, offering thanks to God and exhorting the war's early end.

Fully Investigating Invasion Report

London.—Supreme headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force and the censorship division of the British Ministry of Information today launched drastic official action to prevent any possibility of a repetition of the false invasion flash sent to the U. S. by the Associated Press on Saturday. Rear Adm. George P. Thomson, chief press censor, said that a full official investigation of the incident is still in progress.

CLOTHING PROBLEM ACUTE

Reports portraying the starvation and malnutrition prevalent in the conquered countries of Europe appear quite frequently, but it is less often that one hears of the suffering caused in those lands by the scarcity of clothing.

The National Planning Association recently made public a report, prepared under supervision of Clarence E. Pickett, executive secretary of the American Friends Service Committee, in which it was estimated that clothing sufficient to provide 100,000,000 persons with complete outfits will be required immediately after the war. There also is immediate need for 200,000 pairs of shoes and materials to repair 100,000,000 additional pairs.

Experts who prepared the report emphasized that clothing standards in Europe have declined much more drastically than have dietary levels. In 1943, the report stated, cold probably caused as much suffering and as many deaths as did hunger.

The report contends that the bulk of the clothing required will have to be supplied, if at all, by the United States. Yet, it adds, no serious steps have been taken to provide for the need.

As Bernard Baruch recently said, no country, after the war, will be able to improve the well-being of its people without help from the United States, and peace will be almost meaningless without betterment of daily existence. If this is an overstatement, it illustrates a point. If the peace should be viewed as meaningless because of loss of hope among the peoples of the world, new wars will be in the making. The United States will have done only part of its task if it fails to aid as generously as possible the stricken peoples of the liberated nations.

The draftees have come into their own. For the first time in this war, two all Selective Service divisions, the 88th and 85th, have gone into combat as units.

Composed of inductees from every state in the Union, they gave a splendid account of themselves in the new offensive in Italy, chasing the Nazis 30 miles in two weeks. They advanced side by side, the 85th cleaning up the Tyrrhenian coast and the Pontine marshes, the 88th breaking the back of the Hitler line to the east.

These divisions were fresh troops but not untrained troops. Every unit had its taste of patrol duty. Every soldier had spent months in rigorous training on the varied Italian terrain. They proved that the spirit of draftees is no whit less than that of volunteers. After all, they are all fighting in the same cause, sacrificing the same Italian privileges and securities, and exposing themselves to the same hazards.

Slow to start, the anti-Axis nations gain momentum with each passing week. And it is the last battle which counts.

Freights have been reduced on coal from $1.80 to $1.60 per ton, as is customary with the opening of the canal.

Charles W. Peirce has purchased a quantity of Conarville coke. It is said to be preferable to coal for summer use.

Joseph S. Peirce has sold three six-roomed houses on Pine street to Edward McGinley, John McGinley and Hugh Magee for about $900 each.

In making an excavation for the entombment of Mr. Dancy in the Episcopal burying ground, five skeletons were unearthed. On one of the skeletons was found a beautiful tortoise shell comb, and a strand of hair measuring six feet in length.

A Model is Murdered ~ BABS LEE

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

Argus noted the single bed and small bureau in the alcove. The apartment was devoid of bric-a-brac or ornaments of any sort, including pictures and ashtrays. On the opposite side was a closet-like affair with cupboards, a small icebox and some shelves. A two-burner electric stove stood on a tin table that sloped.

"Depressing dump, isn't it?" Argus asked.

"See what you think of this," Grange said. He led him to a spot directly opposite the table. There was a hole in the wall about the size of a bullet. "Looks like this is where Redbeard carried on his experiments, all right."

"Find anything else?"

"Yep," the Inspector opened a closet door. An overcoat hung there. "There's no mark in it."

Grange said, "It may take us a long time to trace it, but it's identified with the description of the one Redbeard wore."

Argus felt the material, sniffed it, and then turned one of the pockets inside out, carefully, so as not to spill any of the dust that might be in the bottom.

"I'd like to know what your men find from examining this dust," Argus said. "Particularly if they find any tobacco."

He replaced the coat, and walked into the bedroom. He pulled back a corner of the bed coverings. The sheets were clean and unwrinkled. The bureau drawers were next. They were bare.

A sad looking plate that had not been recently washed stood on a dusty dish on the window-sill. An express roared down the El on a level with the window.

"Where's the bathroom?" Argus shouted above the din.

"It's down the hall," Grange roared back. "There's one bath to each floor."

Argus examined the surface of the refectory table, with its red velvet cover. There was a mark on the velvet as though something heavy had been laid on it. There were two floor plugs behind the table. Next to them was the telephone bell box.

There were tiny scratch marks on it as though some one had tried to take it apart with a sharp instrument and it had slipped, marring the paint. On the carpet was a tiny sliver of glass. Argus picked it up.

"Better take a dust combing around this table," he said.

"Okay. Find something?"

Argus put the glass into Grange's hand. Then he went into the kitchenette. There was dust on the shelves, in the glasses, and dishes. There was a red garbage pail next to the tin table. He lifted the lid. The inside pail was missing.

"What's your theory, Inspector?" the detective asked.

"Well," said Grange, pulling at his chin, "we know that Sturgis was in love with Syria and jealous of her. And he was clever about inventing things. Sturgis walked with a limp—so did Redbeard. Sturgis, by his own admission, was cially in this immediate vicinity, where he has long resided. He was in the 75th year of his age.

The burgess and council assembled at the council chamber last Monday morning at 10 o'clock. The newly elected members, A. K. Joyce, Joseph Sherman, George A. Shoemaker, Clarence N. Peirce, Jacob M. Winder and Albert Hooding, were sworn in by the Burgess J. Wesley Wright. William Tabram was renominated president; James Wright, treasurer, Jesse O. Thomas, clerk; B. F. Gilkeson, borough attorney; Charles Saxon, pound keeper; and B. C. Foster, appointed to take charge of the town clock.

There being no opposing candidates for these offices the clerk was directed to cast the ballot for the persons named, and the burgess declared them unanimously elected. For fire warden, Henry Rue, and Joseph S. Peirce were nominated, a ballot being taken. Henry Rue received seven votes and Joseph S. Peirce, four. Mr. Rue was declared elected. On motion the salary of the borough treasurer was fixed at $25; clerk, $75; borough attorney, $25; and compensation for person taking charge of the town clock at $20.

WHITEMARSH—The police of Whitemarsh Township, held at bay in their patrol car by an angry bull, were forced to summon a farmer before they could restore order after a herd of cattle stampeded a Miquon residence. The owner, Harry Ottinger, of Miquon, led the bull back to its stall.

SCHILLSBURG—Sgt. Clarence C. Shaffer, of Schillsburg, was one of a patrol of nine men who wiped out a Nazi machine-gun nest on a scouting trip in Italy. "We opened fire and those first few bursts did the trick," he said. "The Jerries didn't return our fire."

STATE COLLEGE—It looks as if women, who outnumber men at Pennsylvania State College for the first time in its history, will remain in the majority for the autumn term. Approximately 257 applications have been made by women to 36 by men.

ROHM & HAAS GIRLS CHALK UP VICTORY

Scoring all its runs in two innings, the Rohm and Haas girls chalked up another softball victory in the Bristol League by beating Fleetwings, 12-9, on the high school field.

The chemical workers scored seven runs on two walks and eight hits in the third inning and added another quintet in the following frame when it received two more passes and made five hits including a double by Stella Klemczak.

A walk and six hits enabled the Wingers to rally in the last frame and after Chapman tripled to score the ninth runs, Klemczak retired the next batter for the third out.

CROYDON, FRANKLIN AND EDGELY VICTORS

Charles Holland's Croydon A. C. team scored a 12-11 victory over the Bristol Aces yesterday afternoon in a Youth League game at Croydon. The game went 12 innings.

In the last half of the twelfth, Coles scored the winning marker of the tilt when he walked, stole second and third, and scored on Tisler's hit to left field.

"Mike" Dietz pitched the entire contest for Croydon and held the Aces to fourteen hits, five of which went to Barbetta who had three doubles and a pair of singles. Farino, of the winners, connected for a trio of singles and two doubles.

Franklin A. C. won its fourth straight game in the Bristol Youth League yesterday afternoon, beating Stanton's, 12-6, on the Rohm and Haas field. The winners had a total of sixteen hits.

Home runs from the bats of Joe Farrell and Mickey Maudio aided the champions in the scoring of one-half the tallies. The Franklin infield played good ball while Centonzi and Paoletta starred for the losers.

With "Benny" Bincliffe pitching fine ball and holding the opposition to two hits, Edgely A. C. won over the Bristol Township nine, 6-2 yesterday in a Youth League game.

Earl Wagner opposed Edgely and passes and four errors plus the Edgely timely hitting caused his downfall. Bob Elker and Joe Jenkins were outstanding in the Edgely victory.

Allied Mechanized Columns Speed Through Rome In Pursuit of Germans

Many prisoners were taken in the confines of Rome itself. The actual Allied entry into Rome was preceded by sharp fighting south of the city to the west of highway 6. Reconnaissance units supported by artillery entered the city after German rear-guard elements had been thrown back. The Nazis gave way slowly and bitterly.

Red Cross Benefit Planned at Newtown

Such bowlers as Winchester and DeWeiler are sure to make things hum when they start kegling.

Mr. Schleicher has arranged with Dr. Strathie of the local Red Cross board to donate the entire night's receipts to the Red Cross Fund. A small fee will be charged to see the exhibition and a large crowd is expected. Special seating arrangements will be set up for the evening, allowing a good view of the entire match.

Due to the bowling establishment having its alleys resurfaced for the coming season, the exact date cannot be announced at this time; however, according to the management, the renovating of the alleys should be completed by the 10th of June, allowing the surface of the alleys to set well enough. This should bring the date of the exhibition around the 14th of June.

roses, in the center of which appeared a purple orchid. The bridesmaid's costume consisted of a long dress of pink sheer chiffon, featuring a slight train. Rosettes of self-material trimmed the sweetheart neckline, and the sleeves were three-quarter length. From her feather head-dress fell a shoulder-length veil of pink. Slippers matched the costume; and Mrs. DiRenzo carried a round bouquet of yellow roses.

Following a reception at the Mauro home, Mr. Schneider and wife left for Atlantic City, N. J., for a honeymoon of one week. The bride's traveling costume was a black and white suit, white hat, gloves and slippers, and she wore an orchid corsage. The newlyweds will reside with the bride's mother.

Judgment Sought Against Bristol Engineer for WPA

Marting, who, the government asserts, was Newman's "personal and private chauffeur" but who was on the payroll of the WPA as a truck driver, and received $1,056.92 from WPA funds between January 18, 1936, and March 24, 1937.

Newman's "traveling expenses" were paid to him on 37 vouchers, and Martin's pay was on 32 vouchers.

The government's suit is under the Federal Fraud statutes which permit recovery of double the amount of illegal payments, plus a "forfeiture" penalty of $2,000.

high school auditorium yesterday afternoon. The clergyman used as his subject "The Teacher for Time and Eternity."

Four other clergymen participated in the service. The Rev. Burns Brodhead, of Bensalem Methodist Church, gave the invocation; the Rev. W. W. Kern, of Trevose Methodist Church, read the Scripture lesson; prayer was offered by the Rev. Herman Doh, of Andalusia Baptist Church; and benediction was by the Rev. Arthur D. Sargis, of Eddington Presbyterian Church.

The soloist was Mrs. Bertie Sylvester, of South Langhorne, she being accompanied by Mrs. Henry Cunningham, of Newtown.

The Rev. Mr. Cunningham spoke in part as follows: I bring you a message from the greatest teacher for time and eternity, the Lord Jesus Christ. Other teachers tell you what they have learned, Christ said, "I am the truth." He was embodiment of truth itself. As a teacher He was unique and belongs in a class by Himself.

The particular message which He spoke and to which I call your attention was new in His day. The people had been hardened in mind and body by the old Jewish rites and ceremonies, and Jesus opened up a new way to them as He said, "Come unto Me."

Out of this important message I take just one clause "Learn of Me." In what I shall say I trust you will hear the supreme Teacher, the Lord Jesus Christ, saying to each one of you, "Learn of Me."

These words are monosyllabic and form a simple syllable, but how great is their truth. In their scope they include time and eternity. Matters of body, mind and soul are involved.

Hear the Master Leader saying to each one, "Learn My Book." Christ's Book was the Bible. He had only the old Testament. Now His Book is also the New Testament, which tells of His sayings and deeds and especially His great sacrifice for salvation of people.

This Book is never out of date but always up to date. Books of men last a few years and are gone. A Harvard professor said to his class "You may learn here all that is possible in the arts and sciences, but if you do not know the Bible you are not a cultured person." Christ says, "Search the scriptures."

You have completed a high school course. Under these faithful teachers you have learned some things. If you think you know it all go in a college library and see the vast store of knowledge that can be acquired and be convinced that you know very little, and this should stimulate you to go on in study and research and acquire all you can.

Above all hear the Supreme Teacher say, Learn My Truth, here in the Bible.

The Bible is a book not only for Sunday School and church, but a book for every day.

I hope in the Providence of God you all will have many years of life. The question before you is, How can I make the most of my life?

You have talked with parents, and teachers and pastors and you have gotten some advice. Now, not one of them knows what is before you. Only One Teacher, the Lord Jesus Christ, knows that, so be sure and consult Him. Ask for guidance and if you will trust Him and follow His advice you will surely succeed.

I would be untrue to you and to my calling if I told you how to have a strong and clean body and a cultured mind and failed to tell you of care for your soul. Here is where the Supreme Teacher belongs absolutely in a class by Himself. As the Son of God and the Saviour of men He had the only truth in regard to our spiritual life.

"Learn of Me," says Christ, for: A strong and pure body, a cultured and trained mind, a saved and joyous soul.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS By FRANK R. KENT

1940, that he would not complete his term. It is this enhancement that makes the Wallace renomination so controversial a question. For, there are two widely separated schools of thought about Mr. Wallace. His advocates are as ardent as his opponents are implacable. Among the radicals of the country and the advanced thinkers of the New Deal he is unquestionably a hero. Some of these prefer him to Mr. Roosevelt, think him a very great man, indeed. They have compared his speeches to the Gettysburg address, and insist that he is our leading "liberal" — a "great humanitarian" of the Lincoln type. In addition, he is the darling of the CIO, which indorses him along with the President and calls loudly for his renomination. Inasmuch as the CIO is the main reliance of the Roosevelt fourth-termers and the real conductor of the campaign, its devotion to Mr. Wallace is important.

There is another school, however, with whom Mr. Wallace is intensely unpopular. By it he is regarded as an unbalanced and extreme radical, who would, if he could, carry the New Deal socialistic policies to the farthest limit, who is full of noble, though half-baked, notions for the uplifting of the "common man" but utterly lacking in practical ability and, besides, addicted to crystal gazing and other queer means of peering into the future. The idea of Mr. Wallace as President is as appalling to these as it is appealing to the others. The interesting thing about these widely divergent groups is that, poignantly as they feel for and against Mr. Wallace, whether he is named again or not will not affect the Roosevelt vote in November. One side regards Mr. Wallace as a great political asset; the other insists that he will be a heavy liability to the ticket. Neither is right. Certainly, all the left wingers and the CIO leaders most earnestly for Mr. Wallace are also for Mr. Roosevelt. They will be keenly disappointed if Mr. Wallace is dropped, but no one thinks they, then, will turn around and vote for Governor Dewey. That would be ridiculous.

ON THE other hand, the opposition to Mr. Wallace comes from Southern Democratic politicians and the anti-New Deal Democrats and Republicans. Much as the latter dislike Mr. Roosevelt, they would far rather have him President than Mr. Wallace. But no one thinks that if Mr. Roosevelt ditches his Vice-President, these anti-New Deal Democrats and Republicans will vote for him. They will just be glad they haven't got the Wallace threat to face, but this won't diminish their desire to get rid of Mr. Roosevelt, no matter to whom the second place goes. As for the Southern politicians, who are violently protesting the Wallace renomination, nearly everybody agrees they will vote the Democratic ticket regardless of who is on it.

THUS, it seems clear that Mr. Roosevelt will neither lose nor gain votes through Mr. Wallace. Whether he is on or off is not going to alter the total sufficiently in any State to affect the result. Under these circumstances, and conceding that Mr. Wallace's fate is in the President's hands, the best judgment is that Mr. Wallace will be renominated. The strongest reason for believing this is that the Wallace advocates are Mr. Roosevelt's friends while his opponents are mostly anti-Roosevelt — and will continue anti-Roosevelt regardless of what he does. In brief, there is no political advantage to be gained for the President in dropping Mr. Wallace. That being so, it would be an unnecessary and stupid piece of cruelty to a perfectly loyal friend.

the power was not shut off then and the firemen with four pieces of apparatus had to stand by and watch the bridge burn.

The P. R. R. Co. telephoned to the Bristol Consolidated Fire Department and asked Chief Hagerman to go to the scene. Chief Hagerman responded with one piece of apparatus from the Bristol Consolidated Department, and also America Hose, Hook & Ladder Co. No. 2, Goodwill No. 3 and Bristol Volunteer Fire Co. No. 6.

It is presumed sparks from a locomotive ignited the underneath part of the flooring.

"4500 BOSSIES KEEP ME ON THE GO..."

"Sure glad I've got a FORD!"

says L. L. BISHOP
Dairy Farm Inspector
Madison, Wisconsin

Everywhere you hear the same good things about Ford cars. They stay young a long time in looks and performance. They're lively and ready to go. They're easy on gas, and repair costs are low. Use Ford Protective Service and, as the miles roll up, you'll say, "Sure glad I've got a Ford!"

"I TRAVEL A TOUGH SCHEDULE" inspecting 150 dairy herds a month in all weather. My 1940 Ford also hauls dairy equipment, repair parts from Chicago and Milwaukee. "When I figure up how easy this car is on oil, gas and tires, I'm sure glad I own a Ford!"

"MY WIFE HAS TO BE AT HER WORK" every day at the medical school of the university. But on week-ends you'll find us in our Victory Garden. The Ford surely comes in handy for that work too! It costs little to keep a Ford running well and up to par."

"REPAIRS ARE SELDOM NECESSARY." My car has certainly proved its durability. With proper servicing at my Ford dealer's, including routine adjustment, thorough lubrication and washing, it stands up splendidly and keeps its good appearance."
